Anglesey Abbey, Gardens & Lode Mill is one of the National Trust's key properties and was 7th in their paying for entry sites. Lord Fairhaven lived at Anglesey Abbey from 1926 until his death in 1966. During that time, he created a comfortable country home which contains an eclectic collection of

For those who are less able, an electric buggy runs to and from the house. An individual electric buggy can be hired for 2 hours, but must be pre booked directly by you, on Tel. 01223 810086. The restaurant 'Redwoods' serves a good selection for lunches and afternoon teas. Admission is free to National Trust members and £14.25 for non members. The coach cost per person is £24.
